

Search:  Category:

LiveJournal.com

About LiveJournal

LiveJournal is a simple-to-use (but extremely powerful and customizable) personal publishing ("blogging") tool, built on open source software.

Joining the site is free. Users can choose to upgrade their accounts for extra features.

Want to learn more?

Please read our feature overview.
Convinced? Create your own LiveJournal!

Latest News

The latest site news:

Come work with us!

User Stats

Total: 7494683
Active: 2641791

Live Post Stats

Per Hour: 20455
Per Minute: 341

Latest Posts XML

New feature: Tags

2005-06-15

After a bit of a bumpy ride, we have released full Tags support for LiveJournal!

LiveJournal now lets you add tags to your entries when you post. Tags let you organize your entries into categories so that you and your friends can quickly find related entries in your journal. For example, you could tag all of your entries about your pet cat Gabe with "gabe" and "pets", then anybody who goes to your journal can read all of your entries about your fluffy ball of terror.

The tags system is fully integrated into S2, in both the public system styles and in custom styles. You don't have to do anything! Of course, style authors are welcome to customize how the tags are presented. (Please stay tuned to  s2howto for more information!)

We've worked hard to bring you this new feature and hope that you enjoy using it as much as we've enjoyed making it! For now, here are some useful links:

- Read more about tags
- Post an entry with some tags
- Manage your tags once you've got some!

Finally, if you're one of the users that found their style reset to Generator -- we're very sorry! The problem has since been resolved, and your journal should have returned to normal. If it hasn't, please visit the Customize My Journal page and set your style back to what you were using. That should set you back to the old style complete with all your old customizations.

This release lays the foundation for some really fun tag related feature possibilities in the future, but those will only be as good as the tags you put on your entries.

So, tag! ... you're it!

( 1166 comments | Leave a comment )