

Fedora

- Download
- Documentation
- Resources
- Publications
- Press and Success
- Tools
- About

Fedora is a general purpose repository service developed jointly by The University of Virginia Library and Cornell University. The Fedora project is devoted to the goal of providing open-source repository software that can serve as the foundation for many types of information management systems.

The software demonstrates how distributed digital information management can be deployed using web-based technologies, including XML and web services.

Download Fedora Brochure: About Fedora

Download Fedora Software:
Version 2.0

User Survey Articles:

The survey articles are being published to the Fedora Users page. Currently, articles about Tufts University, Northwestern University Academic Technologies Group, and VTLS, Inc. are online. Watch for further survey articles in the coming days.

Fedora 2.0 Released:

The Fedora Development Team is pleased to announce the release of Fedora 2.0. The software is now available for download. System documentation and release notes are also available from the download page.

Fedora Users Group Meeting

Rutgers University Libraries sponsored the first Fedora Users Group Meeting May 13-14, 2005 at Alexander Library on the Rutgers Campus. Information about the meeting and the reports presented may be found on the meeting information page.

